

KTNA Writer's Voice
Arthur Mannix May 2023

Floods, Fossils & Fables:
A Geomythological Jaunt into the Pleistocene Past of the Susitna Valley.

REFERENCE LIST

Note: This is by no means a comprehensive bibliography in that it cites neither time nor place of publication, editions, copyrights, etc... I hope that just the authors names and titles will suffice as it's more of a reading list.

No ibids, ands, or op cits about it!

Berry, Wendell: "That Distant Land: The Collected", "The Unsettling of America"

Bonnet, James: "How the Great Myths & Legends were Created"

Browne, Belmore: "The Conquest of Mt. McKinley"

Davis, Neil: "Alaska Science Nuggets"

Hans, Jonas: "Myth & Mysticism: A Study of Objectification in Religious Thought."

Isaak, Mark: "Flood Stories from Around the World."

Kari, James & James Fall: "Shem Pete's Alaska: The Territory of the Upper Cook Inlet Denaina"

Leonard, Gregory & Jeffery Kargel: "Late Pleistocene Glacial Lake Ahtna, Alaska: Constraints on Lake Extent & Volume and Relationships to Modern Glaciers."

Rozelle, Ned: "Could the megaflood from an ancient lake have carved the valley's landscape?"

Simeone, William & Erica McCall Valentine: "Ahtna Knowledge of Long-Term Changes in Salmon Runs in the Copper River Basin, Alaska"

Snyder, Gary: "Myths and Texts", "Turtle Island"

White, John T: "Terminal Pleistocene Human Occupation of the Upper Copper River Basin."
w/Aureade Henry
& Stephen Kuehn